123
YAN

FACULTY OF LAW OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MACAU

The 2005 Hague Choice of Court Agreements Convention

A chance for china to establish a new system on choice of court agreement

Supervisor: Prof. TU GUANGJIAN

Major: International Business Law

Name: YAN CHENGYAN

STUDENT NUMBER: M-A7-6145-8

DATE: 2010/5/14

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Part I. Introduction 1

1.1. Background to the Hague Judgments Project. 1

1.2. An introduction to the Concluding Process of the Convention. 5

1.3. Aim of this thesis. 10

Part II. Choice of court agreement 13

2.1 The effect of choice of court agreement 14

2.1.1 Prorogation and derogation 14

2.1.2 Forum non convenience and lis pendens. 19

2.2. Exclusive choice of court agreement and non-exclusive choice of court agreement 23

2.2.1. "Exclusive" choice of court agreement 23

2.2.2. The exclusive requirement in Chinese law. 28

2.3. Formal requirement 30

2.4. Implied choice of court agreement 33

Part III. The scope of the Convention 36

3.1 "International" cases 37

3.1.1. The "international" for purposes of jurisdiction. 37

3.1.2. The "international" for purpose of the Convention. 38

3.1.3. The "involving foreign elements" of international choice of court agreement under Chinese law. 39

3.2. Civil and commercial matters 42

3.2.1. What is the "civil and commercial matters"? 42

3.2.2 The exclusions from the "civil and commercial matters" 43

3.2.3. The general scope of choice of court agreement under Chinese law. 46

3.2.4. Is there any conflict between the Convention and Chinese law? 48

3.3. Application in a non-uniform legal system 50

Part IV. Obligation of courts chosen 55

4.1 Obligation of the court chosen to exercise jurisdiction. 55

4.2. The exclusion of doctrine of forum non conveniens. 58
4.3. The exclusion of Lis pendens principle. 62
4.4. Subject matter and transfer 65
4.5. Obligation of chosen courts of China. 68
Part V. Obligation of courts not chosen 70
5.1. The court not chosen shall suspend or refuse to exercise jurisdiction 70
5.2. Exceptions 75
5.2.1. Null and void. 76
5.2.2. Incapacity. 77
5.2.3. Manifest injustice and public policy. 77
5.2.4. Incapable of performance. 79
5.2.5. Case not heard 80
5.3. Obligation of a Chinese court not chosen in a choice of court agreement. .. 80
Part VI. Recognition and enforcement 82
6.1. The general rule on recognition and enforcement. 82
6.1.1. The obligation for the courts addressed to recognize and enforce a resulting judgment. 83
6.1.2. Documents to be produced 91
6.1.3. Procedure. 93
6.2. Refusal of recognition or enforcement 94
6.2.1. The agreement is null and void. 94
6.2.2. Incapacity of party. 95
6.2.3. Notification. 96
6.2.4. Fraud. 97
6.2.5. Public policy. 98
6.2.6. Inconsistent judgments. 99
Part VII. Conclusions 100
Bibliography 104