

Youth Identity Construction in Internet Cafes

by

Cheong Pui Heng (Hilda)

Master of Arts

2005

Department of Communication
Faculty of Science and Humanities
University of Macau

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.....	1
Hanging Around Internet Cafes.....	2
Understanding Internet Cafés and Notions of Identity	7
Internet Cafés' significance and implications	7
A brief background about Internet café business in Macao	7
A brief introduction of café facilities and services	9
Internet café and its significance	11
Internet café and the implication of game playing for young people	14
Understanding identity	16
From the basic	16
From the virtual ... to reconsider	20
Reflexivity and participation in Internet cafes and virtual community	24
Fieldwork	25
In-depth Interview	26
Online ethnography	29
Searching for youth identity construction in Internet café.....	33
Reasons of frequenting Internet cafes	33
Influence of friendship and the peer group	33
A unique place to play and experience the unreal	37
A popular youth leisure place without undue harassment, surveillance or intervention by adults	39
Types of activities young people like to do in Internet cafes	42
The meaning of play	42
The pleasure of play	46
The meaning of virtual community	47
The Construction of Offline Identity of the Youths: Negotiation or Resistance	53
Boundaries between adult and young	54
Representation of youth in Internet cafes	61

Construction of youth identity in cyberspace: style, image, bricolage and narrative.....66

Conclusion80

Reference84